School Board Finds Out Some Students Have Not Learned To Read Or Write

The school board of the Carmel Unified School District adopted a calendar for the 1955-56 school year at its meeting last night, instructed Stuart Mitchell to hire two-and-one-half additional teachers, approved a seven instead of a six-period schedule for the high school and spent $1,149.27 for fibre glass drapes at the high school and $994.04 for plastic blinds to darken rooms for visual aid instruction (movies and slides) at both the elementary and high schools.

They had a chance to wax smug over High School Principal Warren Edwards' report of the usual fantastic records made by the high school in the annual Iowa Achievement Tests, but were properly deflated when they found out why one of the new high school teachers is needed. This is to teach general English to relieve Mrs. Mariquita Brey so she could confine her energies to teaching two classes in English 12 and two in drama.

"What is general English?" innocently asked a board member.

"Remedial work for students who are behind. These are the ones who can't read or write," was the reply.

Mrs. Brey at present teaches two remedial classes in the 11th and 12th grades, while another teaches two in the 9th and 10th grades.

A member of the audience asked how many of these students (guessed at around 75) are Sunset alumni, and if the percentage is a large one why are students there not taught to read and write before they came to high school.

Stuart Mitchell made a notation to make a "retardation survey" in both schools.

For the other needed teachers, Charles Moody will be kept on to teach other subjects. He has been replacing Enid Larson in the biology department, while she has

What Election? Pattee Not In Endorsing Mood; Talks Of Pending Bills

Assemblyman Alan Pattee was willing to talk about anything when we snagged him Saturday, except who he would back in the special election for state senator.

"What election? I'm leaving for Sacramento Sunday (February 27) I'll be glad to welcome whoever wins when he gets to Sacramento," said Pattee, being very smart.

"Even a Democrat?"

Pattee said they don't know Democrats from Republicans in Sacramento most of the time. When they choose up sides for a fight, it is interest against interest, or the north defending itself against the south, but mostly it is sections of the state banding together for mutual benefit. "Senator James McBride of Ventura handled my Nacimiento Dam Bill in the Senate, steered it through, and he's a Democrat."

There are going to be some terrible fights when the legislature reconvenes Monday, Pattee said, looking pleased.

He'll fight for the A. F. of L. bill for increasing the disability insurance from $30 to $50 a week. "How can a man with a broken back live on $30 a week?" he asks.

They are going to try to whittle

D. A.'s Office Stops Seance; Two Are Held

Two complaints were being drawn up today in the District Attorney's office for alleged violation of a county ordinance which prohibits seances or so-called spiritualism gatherings with a "medium" for a fee.

Those who will be charged are Verne Cole, at whose home the gathering was said to be held, and E. O. Kemp of San Francisco, who is suspected as being the medium.

The meeting was interrupted by William Gleason, investigator from the D.A.'s office, who acted on a tip, and arrived as the session was getting underway. The meeting stopped abruptly, because "spirits do not react favorably to strong lights or conversation", according to Gleason.

The session was held in violation of the latest county ordinance on the subject, which was drawn up in 1953. A previous one had prohibited palmistry, and this later one had been passed to permit

Democrats Get Set For Convention In Salinas On March 1

The Democrats, last week end, got around to setting the date for their nominating convention for candidate for state senator, Tuesday evening, 8:00 o'clock in the supervisor's chambers in Salinas.

This week about five more joined the list of people "talked about" for the nomination. One of last week's talked-abouts announced that he would prefer to be left out of the conversation. Fred Farr told the newspapers this week that his time is sufficiently taken up with his law practice and his family. He would consider it unwise to be a candidate at this time. He was the Democratic candidate for assemblyman in the last election.

The election is to be held on May 3, called by Governor Goodwin Knight following the death of Senator Fred Weybret.

There are two Republican candidates who have struck out for themselves without waiting for party blessing, former senator Ed Tickle and former speaker of the assembly Fred Silliman.

This week's crop of rumored Democratic candidates include Joe Stove, former deputy district attorney of Salinas; William Kirk Stewart, Pacific Grove attorney, and county campaign manager for

How Will Librarian Niles Use Retirement Leisure? Read A Book

BY NANCY LOFTON

It was pearl handled revolvers we talked about more than books, pearl handled revolvers and the circumstances that led to the 25 years Elizabeth Niles has spent in the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel. Those years have now brought her to retirement. Leaving behind her the book review catalogues and the accounts made up of innumerable penny fines, she plans after March 1 to read a book—and garden.

We sat before the fire in the house she and her mother built on Torres and Eighth streets, and the spring stillness settled down outside as quietly as when she first came here.

"My being in the Carmel library is one of the things that happen. Things that happen to you are right. Things you try to make happen sometimes don't turn out right." She is here, she went on, because her father, who was an Army surgeon, retired to Salt Lake City. She used to go out to the hospital at Fort Douglas nearby and would have a fine time beforehand, riding off into the mountains and shooting. She would stay overnight at the post many times with friends, usually with Mrs. Rowan, wife of the commanding officer, Colonel Andrew Rowan who carried the message to Garcia. Mrs. Rowan was very interested in working with the blind. She organized a reading room in the public library in Salt Lake City to which blind people came several afternoons in the week to be read to. Elizabeth Niles began to go with her. "One day as I sat there crocheting, a blind woman asked to see what I was making.

Dr. Farley Retired To Carmel After 36 Years Of "The Abundant Life" Teaching At College Of The Pacific

BY VIRGINIA SHAW

Whoever coined the phrase, "a gentleman and a scholar," must have had someone like Dr. Fred L. Farley in mind.

Last month, at the age of 70, Dr. Farley retired to Carmel after 36 and a half years as teacher of ancient languages at College of the Pacific, thus ending a career in education which spans nearly a half-century.

Diminutive, white-haired Dr. Farley seems to be responding to retirement with the same enthusiastic high spirits with which he has infused his teaching. The years have left few lines on his cheerful, pink-cheeked face; bright blue eyes twinkle behind his rimless spectacles, a neatly landscaped mustache accentuates the somewhat mischievous upward-curl at the corners of his mouth.

He modestly denies that there has been anything at all spectacular, or even unusual, in his life's work; "after all," he says with a good-natured shrug, "Greek and Latin are not paid much mind in schools nowadays." Be that as it may, several thousand students went through Dr. Farley's courses at Pacific. Most popular was a course in elementary linguistics, The Art of Language, which he founded at the college many years ago and which alone has attracted an estimated 2000 students during his career there. In addition, he has taught courses in verse writing, art appreciation and English.

Born and educated in Michigan, Dr. Farley taught in his home state and in Kansas before joining the College of the Pacific faculty in 1918. At that time, the campus was located in San Jose, and laid claim to being the oldest college in the state. "There's always been a friendly controversy on that subject between Pacific and the University of Santa Clara," notes Dr. Farley. "We got our charter first, but they held the first classes." When the college moved to Stockton in 1924, Dr. Farley moved with

Women's Demo Club Names Delegates To County Convention

The board of directors of the Carmel Women's Democratic Club has announced its slate of delegates to next week's county Democratic convention in Salinas, at which the party will choose its candiate for the legislative post left vacant by the death of Senator Fred Weybret.

The board, meeting at the home of Mrs. Roderick Clayton, named the following as the club's official delegates: Mrs. Arthur Stuart, Mrs. Maurice Stoney, Mrs. Margaret Hensel, Mrs. Henrietta Millard, Mrs. Ethelinda James, Mrs. Sally Thompson, Mrs. Edgar Viall and Mrs. Hugh Steven. Alternates are Mrs. Page Hosmer, Mrs. Donald Abbott and Mrs. Marie Short.

CARMEL HOOPSTERS INVADE PG TOMORROW NIGHT

In quest of the lightweight championship and anxious to prove spoilers in the heavyweight division, Carmel High basketball players trek to the Pacific Grove gym tomorrow night for a pair of league tilts with the Breakers. The Carmel lightweights can cinch a tie for first place in the limited division by a win over the Wavelets while the Padre varsity can knock the PG heavies out of title contention by copping a win over the classy Breaker varsity. Tomorrow night's games will be the second meeting of the current season between the arch-rivals and will have a definite revenge motive as far as the Pacific Grove hoopsters are concerned. Earlier in the season, the Padres rudely upset the favored Breakers in a pair of league games and the championship-bound PG lads are anxious to put the little upstarts in their place. At this writing, the Pacific Grove varsity is tied with Gilroy and King City for first place in the B league, each team having won seven games and lost one. While the Breakers attempt to get healthy at the expense of the Padres, Gilroy hosts Hollister and King City tries Gonzales at the little Spartan gym. Carmel's lightweight squad shares first place with Pacific Grove and Gilroy and can eliminate the Grove by repeating an earlier win over the high-scoring Wavelets.

Action in the 7 o'clock preliminary game should be fast and furious as both teams favor a fast-break attack with an objective of getting there fustest with the mostest. The PG limiteds' only loss in league play this season was administered by the Carmel lads and Coach Charley Howell's veteran crew hopes to return the favor tomorrow night. Carmel's captain, Bill McCormack, will lead a determined quintet of Merv Sutton, Jim Konrad, Dick Holt, and Ron Huffman into action in the championship crucial.

Carmel's varsity is out of contention for the league title but could prove real pests to the Breaker's title hopes by repeating their earlier win over the hosts. The in-and-out Carmel heavies are capable of playing topflight basketball when hitting on all five and rate even-up with the red and gold PG crew. Captain Gary Nielsen will team up with Dick Ogden, George Wightman, Paul Fratessa and Mike Mosolf when the Padres take the floor tomorrow night.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone.

NO BADMINTON NEXT TUESDAY AND THURSDAY

Carmel badminton players will draw a bye next week as the 8th Annual Invitational Carmel Basketball Tournament takes over the Carmel High pavilion. Racquet and bird enthusiasts have seen steady action every Tuesday and Thursday night since early in September and players look forward to the spirited competition generated in the informal play. Harlan Dyer, sparkplug behind the badminton action, welcomes players to the fun sessions and assures racquet-wielders that the swingers will be back at the same old stand on Tuesday, March 8th.

PADRES DUMP LIVE OAK

Pouring on the coal in the second half to score 30 points, the Carmel High lightweight team kept their championship hopes alive by downing a determined Live Oak five, 44 to 25, last Friday night. Carmel's varsity gained a measure of revenge over the Live Oak varsity by putting on an airtight defense to win a low-scoring cold-shooting affair, 30 to 26. In an earlier meeting, the Live Oak varsity humiliated the Padres, 54 to 28, and were a surprised aggregation as the hustling Carmel defense limited them to 10 field goals. Neither team could hit from the floor with any consistency as the visitors connected on 18 percent of their tries while Carmel made good on 21 percent.

With Bill McCormack sparking a fast-break attack, the Carmel lightweight squad thoroughly routed the visitors in the second half of the preliminary tilt. First half action was fairly close with neither team able to generate an effective scoring splurge and the scoreboard at intermission time read, 14 to 14. The little Padres caught fire in the third period as Jim Konrad, Bill McCormack, and Ron Huffman put on some firewagon basketball to rack up a safe lead. McCormack (12), Huffman (11), and Sutton (8) led the Carmel lightweight scorers, while the strong rebounding of Dick Holt gave the little Padres backboard control.

While the Carmel varsity suffered a severe shooting slump against Live Oak, their determined defensive play carried them to a hard-fought victory. Leech-like guarding by George Wightman, Mike Mosolf and Dick Ogden completely shackled the Live Oak high-scorers who had scuttled the Padres in an earlier meeting. Ogden, starting his first varsity game this season, turned in an aggressive floor game which served to keep the red and grey squad fired-up all the way.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Even the presence of Henry Overin and his 16-point contribution couldn't bring the Carmel Sport Shop hoopsters their first league win of the season against the Naval Air Station last Monday night. The classy Fliers dumped the Sports, 65 to 50, and again it was lack of backboard control which betrayed the stubby cohorts of Coach Don Prince. Two years of duty with the United States Army hasn't dulled the shooting eye of the popular Overin who is ready to take up a professional baseball career again. . . . Next Monday night, coaches and sports-writers of the Coast Counties Athletic League gather in conference to select the all-league basketball teams for the current season. In the B division, the toughest selection will be at the center post where George Wightman, Carmel, and Chris Costello, Gilroy, hold forth. These two lads are running one-two in the league scoring race, with Costello about thirty points in front of the Padre pivotman. Forward standouts appear to be Munoz, Live Oak; Chavez, Gilroy; Melitis, King City; and Moldenhauer, Pacific Grove. King City's guard combination of Albanese and Padilla are favorites for the backline positions but will receive stiff competition from Gilroy's Leonti, Carmel's Mosolf, Live Oak's Walker, and Pacific Grove's Moss. Albanese and Padilla are the top scoring guards in the league but are below par in the rebounding department. . . . Mike Mitchell and his Mission School mites dropped a 22-20 thriller to Pete Osborne and ninth grade gnats in a thrilling prelim to the Live Oak-Carmel games at the Carmel High gym last Friday evening. The little Mission lads nearly pulled the game out of the fire in the closing seconds but Pete and his cohorts hung on for the win. . . . Carmel hoop fans who enjoyed the 49-48 thriller put on by the King City Mustangs and the Padres two weeks ago will have a chance to catch a repeat of this game on the opening night of the Carmel Tournament, Thursday, March 3, when the Mustangs and Padres clash in the 7:30 game. . . . Montery High and Salinas have a big one on tap at the Toreador gym tomorrow night with the winner's prize the league championship and an invitation to the Northern California Tournament at Berkeley on March 10.

Army Lt. Colonel William G. White has reported for duty with the Atlantic Fleet Troop Training Unit at the Little Creek U.S. Naval Amphibious Base at Great Lakes, Illinois.

A native of Carmel, Lt. Col. White is the son of the late Rev. Willis G. White and Mrs. White. He is married to the former Tina Faulkner of Kinston, North Carolina.

Col. White was a Marine from 1930 to 1941, and was much decorated for his service with Marine Expeditionary Forces in Nicaragua and China. A veteran paratrooper, he was commissioned in the Army in 1942, and for some time was operations officer at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii. In 1953, crack-shot Col. White was captain of the all-Army 13-man team at the National Rifle Association Championships.

Thirty-nine decorations and service ribbons adorn his Army uniform, including ten Purple Heart ribbons.

Red Cross Advance Contributions Are Now $4,055.50

The Carmel Red Cross annual drive is off to a flying start with advance contributions to date totaling $4,055.50. This amount is the result of the mailing campaign to previous donors of $25 and over, and out-of-town property owners.

The house-to-house campaign for new members and funds will be inaugurated with a breakfast at the Legion Hall on Tuesday morning, March 1, at 9:00 o'clock. At that time the workers will receive their kits and a final briefing in the aims and ideals of Red Cross.

The total goal of this year's drive is $21,312.00 having been revised downward from $25,556.00, according to Fund Drive Chairman Robert Cairns.

Chicago U Increases Scholarships To Life Members Of C.S.F.; Carmel Hi Has Had 51 Members In Nine Years

Because California Scholarship Federation applicants placed so well in last year's scholarship competitions, the University of Chicago has increased the number of its scholarships offered to life members of C.S.F. from four to thirteen. Mrs. Elise DeCelles Beaton, faculty advisor for the Carmel High School Chapter of the organization, was notified of the change in a letter last week.

Carmel High School has had 51 life members to C.S.F. in the first nine years of its existence, the number varying from two in 1947 to 10 in 1948. Last year was one of the lean years, with only three making the grade: Patricia Finley, Christine Conley and Sam Smith, although this would be regarded as a very good showing in other high schools of comparable enrollment. The ten of the bonanza year, 1948, were: Basil Allaire, Bob Barry, John Blinks, Margot Boice, Rod Dewar, Joan Harrington, Elizabeth Klein, Susan Moore, Peggy Riker and Mat Schmutz.

C.S.F. Life Members of other years are:

1946, seven: Douglas Calley, Pamela Dormody, Martin Irwin, Barbara Josselyn, Doris Lewis, Martha Moller, Barbara Timmins.

1947, two: Sue Dekker, Mary Gregory.

1949, three: Nancy Page, Cynthia Carr, Kathie von Meier.

1950, seven: William Albee, Constance Campbell, Joan Daniels, Janice Hatton, Peter Lyon, Christine Malvido, Ann Thoeni.

1951, eight: Dorothea Bain, Theodore Brandhorst, Edwina Brown, John Edmonds, Barbara Horne, Diane Lewis, Patricia Merivale, Suzanne Smith.

1952, six: Barbara Balzer, Diane Horne, Francis Lloyd, Susan McCloud, Gilbert Neill, Paula Schneeberger.

1953, five: Patricia Chedester, Carolyn Fratessa, Ruth Harrington, Bill Kaye, Marion Williams.

The second quarter honor roll released last week had 101 names listed; the first semester roll included 99 out of an enrollment of 299 students, but only a small proportion of this number will be able to keep their work to the high standards of C.S.F. throughout their four years at high school to achieve life membership.

H. I. Raymond

Henry Ingle Raymond, Jr., a Carmel resident since 1949, died Monday at his home in Carmel Woods following a heart attack. He was 72.

He was born June 3, 1883, at Indianapolis, Indiana, and graduated from Lake Forest Academy and the University of Chicago. He engaged in business in his native Indianapolis for 50 years, retiring in 1949 as president of the Enterprise Iron & Steel Co.

Shortly after his retirement he married the former Helen [illegible] ton and the couple established their permanent home here at Pescadero and Castro Lane.

He was a member of the Kiwanis Club and the Masonic Lodge in Indianapolis, and of All Saints' Brotherhood in Carmel.

In addition to his wife, he leaves a nephew, William B. Raymond, Jr., of San Francisco.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon, with the Rev. Angus Dun, Jr., presiding.

The Needler

By Beth

Here is the latest word on Sh-Boom, the Labrador Retriever owned by Maurice and Ila Grimshaw. She has been retrieving everything in the neighborhood, much to the embarrassment of her owners, including, pots, pans, shoes and a camp chair. Last week she arrived home dragging a full-size crutch, rubber tip and all. Since the Grimshaws are without broken legs at present (Pat recovered from his some time ago), they would like to return it. Another thing Sh-Boom has taken up is jumping rope. Two little girls had a rope tied to a tree one day recently, and a neighbor happened to be watching them. One child turned the rope while the other jumped, until along came that clown dog. She insisted on playing, so the little girls abandoned their own project in favor of Sh-Boom's. I'm told she was doing quite well when last observed.

Local gal went into an eating place here one afternoon and asked for tea and toast.

"Please?" responded the woman behind the counter.

"Tea and toast," replied the girl.

"Please?" asked the woman again.

"Tea and toast." This time quite impatiently.

"Don't you know how to say 'please'?" growled the woman.

A few weeks ago the Needler asked if anyone had a Volume 1, Number 1 copy of the Pine Cone. Stuart Work was anxious to get one, as one of his hobbies is collecting first issues of newspapers and magazines. He tells me this week that he received a letter from Winsor Josselyn, now in Temple City, California, saying that he thought he had one stored with his other belongings here and would look it up the next time he is in Carmel. Winsor, as many of you know, worked for the Pine Cone many years ago in the Perry Newberry and Hal Garrott days. Stuart has a first of the both the Cymbal and the Carmelite, but has been missing the first of the first newspaper in town.

Some time ago a Peninsula attorney, in defending his client, had managed to obtain a lighter sentence than expected. Recently the client wrote to him from San Quentin and asked if there were anything he could make for him up there, to show his gratitude. With kite season coming up, the attorney thought he had the answer and said that he and his children would love a big kite. The prisoner wrote back: "Dear Mr. Blank: I asked the warden about the kite and the warden does not want me to make a kite." Over these prison walls I shall fly?

A couple of weeks ago I told you about the group of Carmel businessmen who played hookey like errant school boys and went over the hill to look at the new cars. Just to look, mind you! Not buy! Well, the follow-up on this story is that one of the group, after thinking it over, DID decide to buy. So he snuck over the hill, unbeknownst to the others, and got himself a real fancy horseless carriage. His sales resistance must have been very low that day.

Norman Winslow, member of the Carmel American Legion, came in this week to point out that on Washington's birthday there were only four or five American flags in evidence in the business district. He also reminded us that there are holes in the sidewalks for that purpose in front of most of the business establishments in town. "Are we, as Americans, taking too much for granted these days?" he asked.

MIRIAM VARIEN IS NEW OWNER OF LA BONITA

Miriam Varien announced this week that she has purchased La Bonita Beauty Salon on Dolores Street. She was formerly the owner of the Powder Puff and in the past was also connected with the shop she now owns.

She has been living in Houston, Texas, for the past year-and-a-half and recently returned to the Peninsula. Her son, William, is a graduate of Carmel High School and is now with the Air Force, stationed at McClelland Air Force Base near Sacramento.

Betty Brown Takes Over Restaurant

A new eating place in town is the Cypress West dining room, now under the management of Betty Brown. Mrs. Brown will serve both breakfast and luncheon, with lunches continuing until three in the afternoon.

A salad and casserole buffet table is featured in the flower-decorated room and such hot dishes will be offered as shrimp or crab Newberg, chicken casseroles and other specialties. Salads will include fruit, seafood and chicken, as well as a low-calory one each day.

Mrs. Brown is no newcomer to the restaurant business here, having been engaged in this work in the Carmel area for the past several years.

Carmel Hi Students Seek Family For Foreign Student

Having put its foreign student fund drive over the top, Carmel High School is now looking for a family with whom the student may live during the 1955-56 semester.

American Field Service, which will sponsor the student's stay in this country, emphasizes that all exchange students are carefully selected for outstanding personality as well as academic achievement. During his stay here, the student will become a member of the family he lives with, share in the duties of the home and abide by the advice and, if necessary, discipline of his "adopted parents."

The family which accepts a foreign student for the semester should be a closely-knit one, preferably with one or more children; AFS stresses that the family members should be truly "warm-hearted" and understanding, and aware of the problems of young people.

Objective of the whole exchange student program, notes AFS, is "to acquaint the foreign student as largely as possible with American customs, language, thought and people. The object is NOT to turn him or her into an American."

latter position. Also, Mrs. Hal Boyd, who has been part-time Home Economics teacher, will take on a full-time schedule.

The new seven-period schedule invented by Edwards calls for high school to start at 8:00 o'clock and end at 3:00 o'clock, or at 8:45, as it does now, ending at 3:45. Students who wish may take in both schedules. Half the faculty will come at 8:00 and leave at 3:00 o'clock, the other half at the later time. Teachers may elect the work schedule they prefer and so may the students. The advantage of this is that the solids, or college prep subjects, are grouped in the middle of the day so that both the early and late risers can get them. The enrichment subjects, such as band and art will be placed at the beginning and end of the school day, so that those who are "loaded" with solids may also take them.

Obi Fabrics Are Feature Of Mari-Josephs New Shop

Two clever and enterprising young women have recently opened a shop here, Mari-Josephs, on Sixth Street between Dolores and San Carlos. The attractive, confetti-painted stairway leads visitors to the second floor, where Mari Matsukata and Barbara Josephs are featuring dresses and ensembles fashioned from Japanese obi fabrics and rich Oriental brocades.

Although this is their first venture of this sort, both have made an extensive study in designing. Miss Matsukata taught fashion designing in St. Louis, where she was also connected with the Forest City Manufacturing Company. Later she studied in Paris, and following a round-the-world trip during which she visited her native Tokyo, she returned here to assist in opening the shop.

Miss Josephs attended Washington University in the School of Fine Arts and was graduated last June. Originally from Southern California, she was engaged in fashion design in the east following her graduation.

The fabrics used in their dresses are of rich silk and the patterns are both exquisite in line, and rich in color values.

Carmel High Kids Brainy As Ever Iowa Tests Show

Carmel High students are just about as smart, and maybe even a shade smarter, than at this time last year, according to results of the Iowa Educational Achievement Tests which were reviewed at last night's meeting of the school board.

The Carmel kids continue to score astronomically above both state and national averages in the tests, ranging somewhere around the 98th percentile—just short of tops. This is the third such test administered at the high school; students took the exams shortly before Christmas, and results were finally released this week, with each student receiving a take-home copy of his scores.

Generally, students in the various classes scored about the same as last year, increases and decreases in scores being negligible. The present 10th grade showed improvement in seven out of the nine test areas to land in the 98th percentile. The 11th grade improved in five, held its own in three and fell slightly in one test (Useful Sources of Information—the test which seems to pull lowest scores nationally), dropping from the 99th to 97th percentile. The 12th grade, precocious even as 11th graders last year, improved in all nine exams. The fledgling ninth grade, taking the test for the first time, scored between the 90th and the 98th percentile.

State average for the Iowa Tests is somewhere around the 50th percentile.

Are there any high-scoring geniuses at the high school? "There have to be, to get the average where it is," comments Principal Warren Edwards.

PAINTERS INVITED TO EXHIBIT AT SANTA CRUZ

Carmel painters are invited to submit their work, in oils only, to the Santa Cruz Art League, Inc., for the league's 25th annual statewide art exhibition to take place at the Santa Cruz gallery in April. Another showing for watercolors will be held in September.

Selection of paintings for the show and awarding of prizes ($100 first prize, $50 second prize and three Honorable Mentions) will be made by judges Frank Myers, a member of the Carmel Art Association, Peter Blos of Oakland, and Cor de Gavore of Santa Cruz.

Further information and entry blanks are available at the Carmel Art Gallery or from the Santa Cruz Art League, Box 895, Santa Cruz.

DeNeale Morgan's Portrait On View This Week End

Those who admire the beautiful and powerful painting of M. DeNeale Morgan will have an opportunity this weekend of a first-hand view of her portrait, recently painted by Mary Lindsay-Oliver for Mrs. Jeanie Morgan Klenke, her sister. All visitors, whether notified or not, will be welcomed between 2:00 and 8:00 o'clock on Saturday and Sunday at the DeNeale Morgan Studio on Lincoln Street near Seventh, opposite the Church of the Wayfarer. Tea will be served both days.

Portraits by Mary-Lindsay-Oliver, who is considered an outstanding portrait-painter, though first known as pianist-composer and conductor, can now be found in America, Britain and Australia. She has exhibited several times at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., the Art Colony of The Catskills, New York; the Art League of Davenport, Iowa; and the Artists' Guild of America here.

Adelaide Marion

Mrs. Adelaide Orton Marion, widow of the late George Marion and a former Carmel resident, died Sunday night in a Los Angeles Hospital after an extended illness.

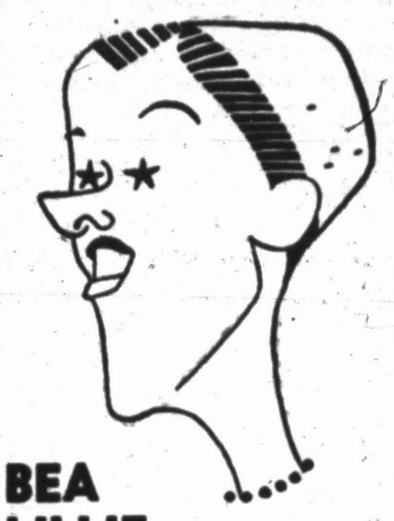

An actress, Mrs. Marion at one time appeared in a number of musical comedies. She and her husband came to Carmel in 1931 and made their permanent home here until his death in 1945. The following year, Mrs. Marion moved to Los Angeles with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Durfee.

In addition to her sister, she leaves two stepchildren, Mrs. Ruth Marion McElroy of Carmel and George F. Marion, Jr., of New York City; four stepgrandchildren, George McElroy of Carmel, Mrs. Robert Fry of Columbus, Indiana, Mrs. Howard Williams of Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and Mrs. Georgette Marion Collier of New York; and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 3:00 o'clock today at the Pierce Bros. Mortuary in Los Angeles.

Dr. Farley Retires To Carmel After 36 Abundant Years

it. At the time of his retirement, he had the record of longest service of any full-time professor in the college's history. In his more than three decades there, he has also served as dean of men, dean of the graduate school and dean of the college as well as chairman of the department of ancient languages.

Before the war, Dr. Farley fulfilled the dream of most classical scholars when he visited Greece during the course of a summer vacation abroad. "No, I didn't unearth any rare examples of Greek art—I'm not one of those important fellows," he laughs. "I just looked."

Many vacations and holidays had been spent in Carmel. Dr. Farley and his wife had many friends here, and they became closer acquainted with Carmel during the war, when his youngest son, David (he has three sons, four grandsons), was stationed near here and employed his leisure time acting with a local theatrical group. ("I think it was the Golden Bough," says Dr. Farley.) Dr. Farley and his wife, Marie, a former English teacher at Pacific, were married ten years ago, and five years later purchased the lovely old Lincoln Steffins home on San Antonio Street where they have now moved permanently. Close to the beach, it has a fine view of the ocean; the light pouring into its big north window is rosily filtered through Mrs. Farley's beautiful collection of cranberry glass which is mounted there.

Dr. Farley has been quoted as saying that he feels retirement is something to be welcomed, not avoided. On his last day of teaching at Pacific, he entered his classroom to give a final examination, only to find that the students had prepared a surprise party in his honor. There was a huge cake, carefully inscribed with his full name in Greek, and, in Latin, the words "Ave, Frater, Atque Vale"—Hail, brother, and farewell. Another surprise came from the faculty, who had arranged to have a volume of his poetry published at the college, and had gathered several hundred advance subscriptions for a limited edition of 800 copies.

The book is entitled The Passing Years, and it contains a little of everything that is Dr. Fred Farley. There are some rousing verses hailing the college ("One of them was entered in a competition for a school song, but it came in second and never was set to music"), poems on California, little sonnets written to friends, poems for children, translations from the Greek and verses about Greece, and a group of humorous verses (Shakespeare in a Drizzling Spring, Eve Deceived, The Great God Zeus and Our Little Nell, etc.) which gently spoof scholarly pursuits. Finally, there is a group called God and Man, which includes a sonnet written last year in celebration of the golden anniversary of the Church of the Wayfarer, to which the Farleys belong.

DR. FRED L. FARLEY

Asked if he might devote more of his time to writing now, Dr. Farley raised an eyebrow and said, "Well, you never can tell. Maybe I'll just sit and rock for awhile; I'm tired of being useful." But there actually isn't such a thing as retirement for men like Dr. Farley; what they have taught and loved is as much a part of them as their hands or eyes. Dr. Tully C. Knoles, chancellor of College of the Pacific, wrote recently, "In all my life I have known no other who had such an appreciation for, knowledge of and skill in the uses of words as Dr. Farley . . . in retirement, Dr. Farley may find the leisure and contentment that will permit him to enjoy, not only in retrospect, but creatively the vast acquaintance with words and ideas which he has developed."

The book with which his colleagues honored Dr. Farley on his retirement includes a series of verses which, every year since 1938, Dr. Farley has composed as his annual Christmas card greeting to his friends. The sonnet he wrote for his 1954 Christmas card seems to anticipate his and Mrs. Farley's retirement here, and to reflect the sense of beauty—in art, in man and in God—which has illuminated Dr. Farley's career as a teacher and leader:

"Mankind, when young, nurtured in strange religions,
Gave life to dreams, let fancied forms denote
The stories poets sang—as truth or legends?—
Symbols for us, who now believe them not.
Alcyone, bereft, transformed to bird,
Nested her young in days of peaceful calm,
Wind-god's paternal gift. Thus ancient bard
Sang man's desire for halcyon days to come
Venus, fairest embodiment of love,
Imagined creature, emerged from ocean's foam,
Bespoke the fount which stirs the world alive;
Poets and sculptors perpetuate her fame.
Now for your halcyon days love's incarnation
Stands in our garden toward the western ocean."

New type of voiceway goes to work in rural areas

The telephone cable being put up by this lineman is one of the newest things in the telephone business. It looks like nothing so much as an old-fashioned twist of licorice. But actually it's six pairs of wire coated with a special abrasive-resistant plastic. The new cable was especially designed for use in telephone lines in areas where homes are widely scattered. It's extremely light and easy to work with. And its cost in use is less than other kinds of wire. Savings like this help us keep good telephone service one of the best buys in your family budget. Pacific Telephone works to make your telephone a bigger value every day.

Black and White Show

By Dora Hagemeyer

A well chosen exhibit of graphic art will be found, until March 1, in the alcove of the Beardsley Gallery at the Carmel Art Association. The center of this group is Armin Hansen's strong and beautiful group of rugged seamen, Stand By, drawn in crayon and full flowing water color, dark and richly wild. Jean Kellogg has an aquatint Tree In The Wind which is free and imaginative, the storm-blown tree seeming to glow with a mysterious light within the branches. Burton Boundey reduces his drawing to its simplest factors, with the old ranch house, the tree and the cloud standing in still relationship.

The Long Road by Jeannette Maxfield Lewis is a most original treatment of the subject. A receding avenue of bare trees falls back beyond the peasant with her basket, the whole picture achieved with skill and understanding. Henrietta Shore's beautiful rhythmic group of water carriers moves like a passage of music across the page, and Maxine Albro's Mexican Mother and Child is faultless in design. Howard Smith has an excellent etching of coast cypress with the light well emphasized and clear. Howard Brown presents an exquisite etching called Indiana Dunes, with the tall grasses bending gracefully against a light sky. Ferdinand Burgdorff also has a memorable etching of dark cypress against a blaze of sun rays.

Korean Refugees by Ann Barretto uses very little color to achieve a solid, plodding, appealing effect, and Joseph Bennett's small and perfect Hillside Ranch delights the eye. Elise de Celles Beaton reveals her skill in drawing by a strong freely-sketched cypress, and Alfred Wands depicts the California Coast in crisp black and white. Monterey Fishing Boats by Kathryn Aurner is also in clean cut black and white, and Jane Buffington's work is represented by a poetic light-washed drawing of dunes and cypress.

A delicate light pen drawing by Kay Rodgers, some swiftly drawn figure sketches by Sam Colburn and by Florence True, a sensitive Japanese-like flower print by Jessie MacGregor, a strong pen-drawing in vertical accents by De Witt Butler, a good firm portrait in charcoal by Doris Rohr, and a still-life drawing of fruit and draperies by F. Fischer make a very interesting exhibit. Several cartoons by Shoemaker, a book plate by Donna Davis, and the cryptic line drawing by Virginia Conroy at the door complete the group.

THE SILVER WHISTLE HELD OVER

The Silver Whistle, the comedy that has been delighting patrons of the Golden Bough Players Circle the past four weekends, will be held over, playing this Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30. Karen Williams has replaced Mary Alice Lincoln in the cast, since the latter is confined to her home by illness. For the same reason Gertrude Chappell, who played an outstanding role in The Vinegar Tree, is replacing Katharyn Chappell.

The play, "oddly endearing" according to one New York reviewer, tells with humor and relish the story of a sort of Pied Piper tramp who fraudulently registers in an old people's home and proceeds to perk up the inmates toward a new lease on life. Making love to the pretty superintendent, the happy-go-lucky prankster succeeds in stirring to vigorous action the girl's stuffy fiance, rector of the neighboring church. By the time the play's shabby hero is exposed and compelled to depart, the sad old people of the place have been transformed into a zestful and merry company.

DELIGHT IN STARS

When clear occasion calls me to look up
And magnify the stars, I think how strange
That life on earth should offer from its cup
A majesty beyond all thought and range.
These mighty denizens of outer space
Uncounted origins of streaming light
Attend and keep our earthly home in place
And lose its fate no moment from their sight.

Throughout the day, beyond the starless blue
They still surround us, leaving only one
Whose light the distance neither dims nor mars.
The azure heights refuse them to our view
And though we spin, a dust-mote in the sun,
At every step we walk among the stars.

—Anon.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

What valley named this fragile flower?
Was it born in a hidden place
Of growth, touched by an elfin power,
As delicate as lace?

Did one with song for sole companion
Stumble upon it long ago?
Was it spilled from a lunar canyon
Of alabastrine glow?

Or is it word dropped forth by spirit
Out of a curved and crystal land,
With a prayer someone on earth may hear it,
And even understand?

—Lori Petri.

THE PRUNED APPLE-TREE

All through the winter
Bare, without a leaf,
Now in the choir of Spring
It is a hymn of praise—
The iron-coloured boughs
Have blossomed into exultation!
This is its answer to the winter silence
Its antonym for clipped branches,
The visible harmony in the year's counterpoint.

—Elizabeth Bancroft.

AND FROST

The wistfulness
of Indian Summer

with indiscernible

mirages hovering
and a pumpkin moon

and frost.

Isaac Stern Concert

By Eben Whittlesey

It is about ten years since Carmel has played host to Isaac Stern, during which time he has emerged as one of the very great artists of his generation. Monday night, in a Carmel Music Society concert, he presented a stimulating and well balanced program, covering a wide range of musical history and avoiding the hackneyed. His assisting artist at the piano, Alexander Zakin, measured up to the stature of the performance. The program contained numbers in which the piano was very important, all of which Mr. Zakin played with discrimination and brilliance.

The conventional classic opening was provided by Corelli's La Folia, an interesting and effective choice. The reading was restrained, gentle, and the style easy. The warm color and amazing steadiness of the artist's tone became evident in the first moments of the program.

Cesar Franck's Sonata in A Major is one of the most beautifully melodic works in the violin repertoire. One does not hear it very often, and when played it is often over-dramatized. The melody is one of those haunting things that keeps running in your mind after the concert. Mr. Stern's reading of the first movement was eloquent, winning and had a dreamy quality at times without being too lush. The second movement had aggressive power and gave full emphasis to the fine piano part. Returning to the mystic, contemplative vein in the third movement, the artist showed his amazing control of tone quality. Whether whispering or crashing, his notes are always clear, well rounded. Always the style was restrained, never flamboyant. There could not have been better balance between the two instruments.

Following the intermission, Mozart's Concerto in G was substituted for the Concerto No. 5 in A, by the same composer, which appeared on the programs. Mr. Stern explained that the wrong music had been brought on the tour by mistake, commenting dryly that he gave us the compliment of assuming we would know the difference. Written when the composer was nineteen, the work is gay and capricious, full of youthful vitality. Mr. Stern's reading was vivid and full of the youthful freshness that endears Mozart to each succeeding generation. The second movement had as much warmth and appealing tenderness as the first had of gaiety. In the third movement brilliant splashes of color alternated with youthful touches of whimsy.

Somehow Ginasteras' Rhapsody, Pampeana No. 1, intense, modern and discordant as it was, followed easily upon the Mozart. It was full of weird effects and technical tricks brilliantly executed.

The balance of the program was full of virtuosity and excitement as we heard Szymanowski's La Fontaine d'Arethuse and Paganini's La Campenella. These are two such different examples of virtuosity that the combination was far from being an overdose. They served also to illustrate Mr. Stern's ability to keep clarity of tone and fine quality regardless of technical difficulty and speed.

A highly enthusiastic audience was rewarded by three fine encores: Tschaikowsky's Valse Sentimentale, mellow and caressing after the moderns; four short Romanian dances by Bela Bartok, capsules of brilliance and temperament; and finally the familiar Hora Staccato. This last was given a most imaginative interpretation, almost a caricature. It was clear that Mr. Stern had come to the end of a splendid program.

—o—

Everything that heard him play,
Even the billows of the sea,
Hung their heads, and then lay by;
In sweet music is such art:
Killing care and grief of heart
Fall asleep, or, hearing, die.

Shakespeare—Henry VIII.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

As I write this, I have just returned from a trip by air to Eugene, Oregon, for the purpose of attending the hearing called by the U. S. Forest Service on the question of a change in boundaries of the Three Sisters Wilderness Area. I have already written one column and part of another one on this subject and shall try not to repeat, but perhaps some observations on the trip would be of interest.

In order to see our western mountain scenery in all its glory one should fly over it in winter. Then not only the highest peaks but all the lower foothills are outlined in pure white, and if, as happened to me, a fresh fall of snow has just taken place, even the heavily wooded slopes show signs of white through the dark green of the foliage.

On the northward trip, first Lassen and then Shasta came into view. As we flew over Mt. Eddy, just west of Shasta, we saw the Trinity Alps shine brightly to the west, a magnificent range and one of my favorite climbing areas when I lived in northwest California. No sooner had we passed Shasta than Mt. McLoughlin appeared clearly to the north, a perfect cone at first but gradually changing in outline. Then, leaving the Siskiyous behind, we soon caught sight of Mt. Thielsen and Diamond Peak, and finally the Three Sisters and Mt. Jefferson just before landing at Eugene. A truly glorious panorama in three hours of smooth and rapid travel!

At Eugene conservationists from all over the Northwest had gathered to protest the cutting down of the Three Sisters Primitive Area, which would throw a large acreage into the sustained yield forest. Everyone admits that sustained yield forestry is good conservation. The only dispute was on the subject of whittling down the wilderness area and thus reducing the recreational possibilities and the opportunity for scientific study along ecological lines.

Over 50 people had asked to be heard and about four to one were against the proposed reduction in area. Howard Zahniser, Executive Secretary of The Wilderness Society, had come from Washington, D.C., a round trip of some 6,000 miles, to state the Society's position, and I myself had traveled about 1,000 air miles, round trip, to testify to the interest of the National Parks Association in saving this wilderness area. I was greatly impressed by the earnestness and tremendous enthusiasm of the group. I don't believe that a gathering of that kind would have been possible 20 years ago. People are really waking up to the seriousness of the situation.

The final decision will not be made for several months. There is still time for letters to be sent to the U. S. Forest Service, Portland, Oregon, or to the headquarters office in Washington, D.C., or both, protesting the reduction in acreage of the Three Sisters Wilderness Area.

Fourth Audubon Screen Tour will be held Monday night, 8:00 o'clock at the Sunset Auditorium.

This tour, photographed by Fran William Hall and his wife, takes us into faraway places in Mexico. Many spots photographed have only lately been accessible by road. Making friends with the natives, the Halls were guided to habitats of rare animals and birds and saw ancient ruins of civilization long dead.

For the last 20 years they have traveled into every state of the Union and into Canada, photographing and lecturing. Many summers were spent exploring in the wilder parts of the west as the Wind River mountains in Wyoming and the Dark Canyon in Utah. Especially noted for their work in Mexico their colored movie South of Siesta Land is considered tops.

Community Invited To Free Lecture On Religious Unity

One God—One Religion will be the subject of a talk to be given by Mrs. Florence V. Mayberry, author and lecturer, Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Girl Scout House, Carmel.

Mrs. Mayberry, a professional writer from Santa Paula, California, has lectured for many years and recently the International Teaching Committee of the Baha'i World Faith appointed her to lecture in all the Western states, as well as Canada and Alaska. There is no clergy in the Baha'i Faith and all lecturers accept this responsibility without recompense, giving freely of their time and effort.

The Baha'i message is: "That all nations should become one in faith, and all men as brothers; that the bonds of affection and unity between the sons of men should be strengthened; that diversity of religion should cease, and differences of race annulled."

Mrs. Mayberry is sponsored by the Carmel Baha'i Community and the public is cordially invited to attend. There is no admission fee and no collection will be taken.

Surprise Party for Ed Millar

The Carmel Street Department turned out full force Monday night to honor one of its veteran crewmen, E. S. Millar, first to leave the department under the new retirement plan.

Mr. Millar, who is 72, has been with the street department for seven years and four months. In all that time he has taken only 11 days off for sick leave. His duties have included patroling the beach and keeping Devendorf Plaza neat and trim.

Street Superintendent William Askew initated the surprise party for Mr. Millar by inviting all the members of the street crew and their wives to his and Mrs. Askew's home on Torres Street. Bill furnished and Mrs. Askew cooked a 25-pound turkey, and since everyone wanted a part in the preparations, the other wives brought all the fixings and the single men contributed donations.

Springing the surprise on the party honoree involved letting Mrs. Millar in on the plans and having her maneuver "Ed" to the Askew home on the pretext that Bill wanted to see him on business. The guests arrived at 6:30 and had the party preparations complete when Bill Askew opened the door for the Millars a half hour later. From the astonished expression on Ed's face and the pleased smile on his wife's, it was evident that the surprise was complete.

When the greetings and congratulations were finished, everyone settled down to enjoy the buffet supper and a pleasant time together. Afterwards, Bill Askew, on behalf of the entire department, presented Ed Millar with a fine rod and reel for him to use in his favorite sport of fishing.

In addition to the Askews, those who gathered to honor Mr. Millar were Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Roman, Mr. and Mrs. John Guerin, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Ragsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Molteni, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brewer, Walter Victorine, John Molteni and Fred Askew.

Also on hand for the party were Sgt. William Askew, Jr., and his wife. Bill, Jr., is presently stationed at Fort Ord, having spent the past two years with the Army at Fort Bliss, Texas. He'll be back with the street department as street foreman after March 10. During his absence, his job has been taken over by Angelo Roman.

Joni and Fiance Honored

Joan Catherine Mackenzie and her fiance, Lt. William C. Hoyman of Encino, were honored at a dessert party and shower given recently by Mrs. Frank Sampson and held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams in Hatton Fields. Joni and Lt. Hoyman, who was on leave from his Navy duty at Coronado, were presented with a variety of gifts designated for the kitchen of their future home, which will be first in Coronado and then somewhere in Japan, where the lieutenant expects to be transferred in May.

Present at the shower, in addition to the hosts and the honorees, were the bride elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher Mackenzie, and her sister, Gail, who will be maid of honor at the wedding next month.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Dallerup, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hannon, Mr. and Mrs. John Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wasserman, Mr. and Mrs. David Girdwood, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. William Calkins, Mrs. Florence Warren and Miss Theo Winfree.

Another party honoring the young couple was given last weekend in Encino by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Timmins, who divide their time between Carmel and Southern California. Among those present were Lt. Hoyman's mother, Mrs. Ralph Hoyman, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Carpenter, both of Encino.

Lt. Roger Hoyman, who is stationed with the Navy in San Diego, will be his brother's best man at the wedding, which will take place at 4:00 o'clock on Saturday, March 12, at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Sutton-Jelesko Wedding

A brilliant spring day provided the background Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Myrna Lea Sutton of Carmel and Augustine Ralph Jelesko of Cupertino, who were pronounced man and wife by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray in 3:00 o'clock ceremonies at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Over 200 relatives and friends of the young couple crowded the little church as Myrna was escorted to the altar by her father, Ray S. Sutton. She wore a full-train gown of delicate Chantilly lace, fashioned with long pointed sleeves and a stand-up queen's collar rising from the V-shaped neckline. A crown of seed pearls held her fingertip veil of net edged with lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of butterfly orchids, catteleya and white camellias.

Her maid of honor, Miss Dawn Suurballe of Salinas, wore a street-length sleeveless frock of pink crystalette and carried a round bouquet of pink carnations backed with net. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marilyn Marrs, Alice Lutes, Doris Conrad and Allene Petty, Carmel friends and Monterey College schoolmates of the bride's. Their gowns, fashioned similarly to the honor attendant's, were of cranberry red crystalette, and they carried pink bouquets tied with cranberry streamers.

The bride's cousin, Sandra Norton of Hollister, was the flower girl, wearing a pink dress and carrying a miniature bouquet. Sandra's brother, Donald Norton, carried the ring on a heart-shaped pillow edged in lace. Still another cousin of Myrna's, Barbara Watson of Salinas, was vocalist.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norton of Cupertino, was attended by his brother, Anton Jelesko. Ushers were the bride's brother, Mervyn Sutton; her cousin, Artie Sherman of Salinas; Gene Rivizza of San Jose; and the groom's cousin, Bob Saich of San Jose. Also present for the ceremony were Augie's second brother, John, and his sister, Mrs. Kathryn Cooper of San Jose.

Following the reception in the church parish hall, Myrna and Augie left for a week's honeymoon in Southern California. They planned to stop by in Carmel again this weekend before driving on to their new home in San Jose, where Augie is in business.

Mrs. Pope Weds Harold Banks

Lulu S. Pope (Mrs. Frank Pope) of Carmel and Harold John Banks of San Jose were married February 11 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Davidson in Pebble Beach. Dr. Davidson, a long-time friend of the couple, performed the wedding service.

The new Mrs. Banks, a Carmel resident for many years, formerly made her home here at Casanova and Seventh. She recently returned from a flying trip around the world. Mr. Banks is a businessman in San Jose, where he and his wife will make their permanent home.

The Banks plan to remain on the Peninsula for a short while until their new house in San Jose is completed. Later this spring, they plan to leave on a trip to Africa.

Lee and Joan Engaged

An Easter Sunday wedding is planned by Joan Koenig of Lodi and Lee Laugenour of Carmel, whose engagement was announced last week at a party in their honor given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Koenig, at their home in Lodi.

The engagement was revealed to local friends at a recent party for Lee's brother, Robert Laugenour, and his bride, the former Ann DeVaughn, who were married January 30 at the Church of the Wayfarer. Both Lee and Joan were among the attendants at the wedding. Bob, in turn, will be his brother's best man on April 10, while Ann will be one of Joan's bridesmaids.

The bride-elect went through school in Lodi, graduating from Lodi High School. Last June she received her degree in teaching from San Jose State College, where she was affiliated with and president of Sigma Kappa sorority, and a member of Delta Phi Upsilon and Kappa Delta Phi honor societies. She now teaches kindergarten in the San Jose elementary school system. Joan has one brother, Donald Koenig, also a student at San Jose State.

Lee, whose grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William T. Lee of Carmel, attended Carmel schools and was graduated in 1950 from Carmel High, a star athlete in baseball and basketball. He subsequently spent two years at College of the Pacific, where he was affiliated with a C.O.P. fraternity, Omega Phi. He completed his college work at San Jose State, graduating last December. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity, with which his brother is also affiliated at San Jose.

Following the wedding, which will take place in Lodi, Lee and Joan will make their home in San Jose where his brother and sister-in-law also live. Lee is employed as a representative of a wholesale food distributing company in the San Jose area.

Kevin Takes Command

Casa Contenta in Carmel Valley has never been a happier house than it is right now. Reason: the old homestead has a new tenant, who, though he's only a week old today, has already established himself as master of the house.

The newcomer's name is Kevin Dana Woodman, and he joined the family of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clarence Woodman last Thursday at Peninsula Hospital. He's described as weighing seven pounds, 12 ounces on arrival, has dark hair like his mother and is, of course, entirely beautiful. His immediate circle of admirers includes, in addition to his parents, an eight-year-old brother, Gregory, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. James Peters, who is visiting from Los Angeles.

Small Kevin joins a king-sized family, whose members range from Florida to California. On his mother's side, he has six aunts and an uncle, and on his father's side four uncles and an aunt, as well as flocks of cousins on both sides. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodman of San Rafael. Both they and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peters, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries.

The Stanley Woodmans moved permanently to the valley last October. Mr. Woodman runs the Murphy sand and gravel plant.

Meet Melissa Lee

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vincent Ciandro of Los Ranchitos, Carmel Valley, were joined by a baby daughter last Saturday at the Monterey Hospital. They've given their little girl the graceful name of Melissa Lee.

Canhams Welcome Newcomer

Softball enthusiast Don Canham may have his own personal bat boy in the future. Monday morning, he and Mrs. Canham welcomed their first child, a seven pound, 11 ounce son, at Peninsula Hospital.

Stanley Paul is the name tentatively selected for the baby, who is also the first grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Canham of Carmel and Colonel and Mrs. C. E. Mitchell of Watsonville.

The newcomer is a second-generation Carmelite, since his dad was born, raised and educated here. Don was a top athlete at Carmel High, and is also a first-rank player with the Pine Cone softball team. He is employed by the Work Lumber Co. in Monterey.

Assisting the hostess were the Mesdames Elmer H. Walker, W. F. Dunkleberg, J. H. Buys, Joseph Russell, Edward McWilliams, John Stepleton, George Wright, James McClish, Richard Dennison, James Bloss, Hubert Klemp and Earl Bennets.

Monday evening at 7:00, Mrs. Stilwell will give a talk on customs and courtesies of the service at Fort Ord Officer's Club.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. G. M. Simonson, national Panhellenic Council delegate from 1950 to 1954 and former national Panhellenic treasurer and member of the executive committee. A graduate in architecture from the University of California, and a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, Mrs. Simonson has served on the Grand Council of Gamma Phi for 16 years and was national president of the sorority from 1946 to 1950.

All newcomers to the Peninsula who are affiliated with national collegiate Greek letter societies are invited to Saturday's luncheon.

World Affairs Council

With a large attendance of members, at its annual meeting on February 17, the World Affairs Council elected nine new members to the Board of Directors to replace those who had retired for personal reasons. The new direc- Tanya Treutle, Mrs. Alastair Mackay, A. Bland Calder, William Mackay, A. Bland Calder, William Gahagen, Hans von Richter, Capt. C. T. Singleton, and Gen. Jens A. Doe.

With President Frank Elton presiding, reports were given by the chairmen of committees on program, publicity, hospitality and membership. The reports were discussed and voted accepted.

Mr. Elton then expressed the directors' appreciation of the cooperation of the Pine Cone and of the public libraries of this area. Mrs. Howard Clark paid tribute to one of the founders of the World Affairs group on the Peninsula, Dr. Henry Houghton. President Elton added his appreciation for Dr. Houghton's organization of this year's study groups on Russia and on the Near East. He also expressed regret at Dr. Houghton's retirement from the Board of Directors, but added he had been assured of the continued interest of Dr. Houghton and other retiring members.

The next public meeting for members and guests, on March 25 at Sunset School, will feature Prof. Eugene Staley of Stanford, who will speak on America's Stake in the Undeveloped Countries of the World.

Realty Boards Host Officers

Some 60 members, wives and guests were present for dinner at La Playa Hotel last Friday evening when the Carmel and Monterey boards of the California Real Estate Association were joint hosts to Reg F. Dupuy, Long Beach realtor, and Eugene P. Conser, secretary of the C.R.E.A.

The gathering heard a talk by Mr. Dupuy on the increased educational requirements and training for real estate. Such training has been emphasized in numerous colleges and universities, and in some cases has been included as a four-year major course. Mr. Dupuy also stressed adherence to the rigid code of ethics required by the state and adopted and administered by local boards.

Mr. Dupuy represented Floyd Lowe of Palo Alto, president of the California Real Estate Association, who is addressing local boards throughout the state. Mr. Lowe was unable to fulfill his scheduled engagement with the local boards because of illness.

it under certain rules and regulations.

According to the report, there were some 12 or 15 people in attendance, many of them said to be well known local residents. The D.A.'s office did not release the names, inasmuch as most of them said they were there for "scientific reasons" rather than spiritual ones. In case of a court trial, some of these may be called as witnesses.

Gleason said that this is the first time in the many years he has served in his special capacity, that a meeting of this sort had been interrupted. "We do not like to use the word 'raid'", he said.

The meeting took place in one of the houses on the old Hatton ranch, at the entrance to Carmel Valley. Rumors of previous such meetings had reached the ears of D.A. personnel, and plans were afoot yesterday to take action.

DUNKY'S BIRTHDAY

Dunky is a worm
He never wiggles and he never squirms
He lives right under the very cold ground
Where he has a merry-go-round.
Now Dunky owns a little park
Where all the other worms take part.
They love to play on the merry-go-round
That stays right under the very cold ground.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

Good sportsmanship is not only for games, but for class and home. When you are voted down you must cooperate with the others and the winners. It is better to lose and be a good sport than to win and be a bad sport. In a baseball game, if you are called out, don't argue. Always congratulate the winning team. —Ronnie Faia

THE BIG SCARE

Last summer when I was at camp in the Santa Cruz Mountains our tent group went for a campout. We spent the evening at campfire that had quite a number of tent groups present. We sang and roasted marshmallows. After that we started to tell ghost stories and by the time we left for our camp sites we all had a case of the jitters.

After we had gotten into our sleeping bags and we were all quiet, we heard some crackling in the bushes. We were all pretty scared, and most of us thought it was one of the weird things they told us about at campfire. Finally one of the girls got up enough courage and turned on her flashlight, she pointed towards the bushes. We could not tell what it was until we saw an old camp dog come towards us.

THE BUFFALO CHASE

This happened when I went to Yellowstone Park with my family. We were riding along and I saw a buffalo. I decided to take a picture of it. We stopped the car, I got out of the car. I got in the field where the buffalo was. I got as close as I could to the car. As we went driving away the buffalo just stared at us.—Fred Ameroso

A RUSSIAN CHRISTMAS

A Russian Christmas is much the same as ours, but instead of it being on December 25, it is on January 13. On January 13 the table is set neatly on straw because Jesus was layed on straw after he was born. After they set the table, they all go to church to worship Jesus. When church is over, the relatives and family come home, sit around the Christmas tree, and light the candles on the tree. After they open their presents (from Big Uncle (their Santa Claus) they have dinner which is usually chicken or turkey, kj furu, corn bread, homemade pudding and wine. When dinner is over they sit around and talk about the late news. When it is time to go to bed they thank God for a wonderful year which had just past.

STUCK IN A GHOST TOWN

Once my family and I went to Nevada to visit my Uncle in a small town called Hawthorne. There are quite a few ghost towns near there.

We stayed a few days and then we decided to leave. First we got plenty of gas. The man at the gas station was a good friend of my Uncle's and he gave us all some candy. He told us that there was a ghost town a few miles away, so my Dad decided to go there.

The ghost town is called Aurora. It was a bumpy ride going there.

There was an old tumble-down hotel and a small school house. There were about ten small houses in all, even a jail.

We drove by a few houses and looked in. Inside there was an oil cloth on the table and salt, pepper, sugar, cinnamon, butter, and many other spices. There was coffee and tea which had been there for a long time. Millions of bricks were scattered around from the hotel and the bell had been removed from the school.

When we decided to leave. Dad picked a road that led from town. We were riding along when we hit a rock on the road. There the car stayed for about 20 minutes. Finally we were on our way.

A CHARMING EXPERIENCE THAT TURNED OUT ALRIGHT

One night in Seattle, Washington, when I was about five years old, my mother was sitting out in the living room. I was asleep in my bedroom and Dad hadn't arrived home yet. Mom heard a noise but thought nothing of it. After a while she heard footsteps down in the cellar. She got up and went to the kitchen. Boy! was she scared. She got out the butcher-knife and a hammer, and went out to the living room and yelled, "Go way or I'll call the police."

But they didn't go away, so she called the police, and lost contact. Then she dialed again. By this time her teeth were chattering. Just a few minutes later she got the police and told them to come over quickly. A few minutes later the police arrived, but it was too late. The men got away. About an hour later Dad got home and said, "What's new?" and Mom replied, "Nothing much. A burglar got in the house." —Patricia Rhodes

ADVENTURE IN THE HILLS

On October 13, 1954 three Boy Scouts set out for Carmel Valley. They were going on a hike to pass their second class requirements.

They set out for a position five miles out in the Valley, about 8:00 in the morning and arrived at their destination at noon. They cooked their meals and started back to the main camp. (It was about 1:30). On their way back they decided to take a cross-country short cut through the woods and over the foothills behind the High School. By the time they had gotten into the deep part of the forest, they noticed that it was getting late. It was 4:00 o'clock and they had three miles to go. (They were to be back at camp by 3:00 o'clock.)

At 6:30 p.m. the other scouts at camp started to search for them. After three hours of searching, the scouts made their report. It was that the three boys could not be found in the dark, so they had to wait for the next day.

The three boys had a compass, flashlight, a rope, matches and a bit of food.

By the time 8:00 p.m. rolled around they were in the foothills behind the High School. After another half hour they came feeling their way into camp and fell into their bunks.

The next day everyone said how amazing it was that the not-yet second class scouts had found their way back in the dark.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

There are many garden guides in book form on the market.

Most of these are good books, yet remember that they all do not refer to our special locality. When articles appear in them, they are giving advice to the mountain region, the hot valley regions, and cover a vast territory. Monterey Peninsula is a different thing; we are not given to heavy frost nor to torrid summers. One of the best books for our particular locality is Norvell Gillespie's Pacific Coast Gardening Guide.

Gillespie restricts himself to coast climate and conditions and I have always found his advice excellent. This question came up recently when a friend of mine pointed out to me the divers directions for starting tuberous begonias. My advice was to read Gillespie and stick to his rules. And right now is the time to think of those dried and funny looking gadgets that should be wintering in some dark spot in your garage. All bulbs and tubers are a complete unit within themselves. They do not make their flowers after they are planted; in each bulb, tuber or corm the tiny embryo of the flower to be is already a personality and the blooming results depend upon proper planting system.

My tubers were placed in paper bags last fall, and dosed with a naphthalene powder. At that time I shook the bag vigorously, then carefully punched holes in the paper sack and hung same on peg in garage. Any virus or insect that might have remained in the bulbs are destroyed. Taking the bulbs out for planting is a good time to repeat the naphthalene treatment. Some of the bulbs will show pink spots and these bulbs are already sprouting. It is best to dust these gently, but be sure you do give them a treatment of naphthalene before planting.

Planting tuberous begonias is simple. Fill flats with a mixture of peat moss and leaf mold with a sprinkling of good coarse sand. Don't bury the bulbs! Lay them gently on top of the mixture and fluff up soil around the sides, and be sure you leave plenty of breathing-room so the sprouts can mature. Water gently, keep flats damp, but never sodden.

The tubers will tell you when the time comes to remove to garden or to pots. Leaves about four inches high is the proper time, and when planting, be sure to place the point of leaf toward you. If leaf is pointed backward, the flowers will bloom backward. I prefer to pot my tubers and in this way, when blooming is over, the pots can be laid on one side in a sheltered, darkened spot and left to dry. Plunge pots into your garden if you wish, and give the impression tubers are growing in the open.

For the last two years we have been visited with a vicious mildew on tubers, but a little care with spraying will prevent the damage. Another hazard of planting tubers is that many gardeners plant them upside-down. The top of tuber is the concave side, and for goodness sake, don't reverse this order or you will have your bulbs blooming toward China.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The vital need for proofs rather than mere professions of Christian power will be stressed in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus" to be read at Christian Science services on Sunday.

Selections from the Bible include the following passage from the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:16): "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mray Baker Eddy will include the following (233: 1-5): "Every day makes its demands upon us for higher proofs rather than professions of Christian power. These proofs consist solely in the destruction of sin, sickness, and death by the power of Spirit, as Jesus destroyed them."

The Golden Text is from I John (4:9): "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him."

How Will Librarian Niles Use Retirement Leisure? Read A Book

She handled the crocheted collar I was making and thought it very beautiful. She asked me to teach her to crochet and I did. I began to work with a blind man, too, teaching him to use a typewriter. Two small boys needed help with their arithmetic and I worked with them on Braille slates. Two or three afternoons a week I spent with the blind. When I met one of my pupils on the street they would speak to me and then rest their hands on my arm. I could feel their eyes in their fingertips."

As a result of her work with the blind, the librarian asked Miss Niles to work for her while part of her staff was on vacation. She stayed there until her father died, then she and her mother moved to Southern California. There she worked on the research staff of one of the movie studios. She had graduated from Wellesley in English and philosophy and she knew how to find her way around in an historical period. "I'd have to read a novel, see it in my mind's eye, search out background material such as costumes and contemporary history and then make a short sketch of the story with a good list of references." Finally, a serious operation severed her from her job and a friend suggested Carmel. After she and her mother built a house here, one day when she drifted into the library, she found the librarian grumbling over her files. Miss Niles said she'd do it, and there she was. "I've been here ever since. These things just happened to me. Opportunities presented themselves to me and I did not fight against them.

After Elizabeth Niles joined the Carmel Library staff she learned that Mrs. Ralph Chandler Harrison, who gave the library to Carmel, was an old friend of the Mrs. Rowan who had led her into a library in the first place. It was during the years of travel in the Orient that the Harrisons collected the extensive number of books on Japanese art, Chinese philosophy and East Indian metaphysics which form the Carmel Library's collection on these subjects. Mrs. Harrison retired to Carmel after her husband's death and eventually left her books and furniture to the Carmel Library. She left also land for the building, money to build it and a request that Maybeck be the architect.

Miss Niles reports that in the 25 years she has been in the library the Carmel public has in general been exceptionally careful in its handling of books. When books do disappear, it's usually because people have simply forgotten them, she believes. "Occasionally," she commented, "as the soldiers at Fort Ord say, someone just 'bugs out' with a book. Last summer I was amused at Niven Busch. He gave the library a copy of his latest book. We gave him a complimentary card. He took out a book and the book didn't come back. When the book reached the status of being over-over-over due I sent him a reproachful card, just saying, 'Is this the way to treat a friend?' The reproach must have stung because the book came back next day. That's the way most people do with overdue books."

Miss Niles reported one hardened customer addicted to writing in books. So irate this man grew, particularly when reading books about the Civil War, that he filled book margins with his splenetic comments. She watched for him and one night caught him at his work before the fire in the library. She confronted him, armed with righteous indignation and an eraser. He mended his ways, at least temporarily.

"What does a chief librarian do all day?" she repeated my question. "I keep books. Not the sort of books you mean, but account books. In an average month I have over $100 in penny fines to record. I keep track of deposits, rentals, fines, gifts, refunds, supplies, janitor service and page boys. I have to make books requested fit into our budget. Then there's cataloguing and reading book review journals interminably. We try to make the library fit the needs of the community. We don't need a large number of reference books or text books because the schools on the Peninsula have their own libraries. We have a large number of retired people, army people and people working in the arts here. The library must have most of the recent nonfiction, and books on the arts." In between keeping track of those penny fines and deciding what books to buy, with recommendations from the book committee, she finds herself looking up things for people. A man wanted to know yesterday if the United States Constitution includes a paragraph from the Virginia Constitution. "I'm still working on that one. That's my life until March 1. Then I'm going to read a book. A real book. Not a book review. I'm going to garden and I hope be visited by lots of people."

What Election? Pattee Not In Endorsing Mood; Talks Of Pending Bills

away at the Tideland Oil Royalties on several sides. "I'm for leaving the oil money that is now earmarked for Beaches and Parks as is, and earmarking the remainder for state school construction. If we do not earmark all of this, it will disappear into the general fund."

He is aware that a bill to allow hunting in the state parks has been introduced. It looks like "a dangerous thing" to him but he hasn't had a chance to read the bill yet. But he will. He reads every bill he votes on. "I'd rather vote on 18 bills and know what I'm doing than vote on 50 because some block or lobby dumped them on my desk and told me to."

He was co-author of a bill with Assemblyman Dolwig to save the Butano Redwoods. He'll continue to watch all conservation bills closely.

The watar fight might be held over for a special session, and he will peg for having the Feather River water moved through the coast counties on its way south. "The San Joaquin Valley can have the Trinity River water."

What good would it do Monterey County to have the Feather River water ditched or piped through its territory en route south? we wanted to know.

"Monterey County doesn't need water now but it might in a few years, and it would be there in reserve; Santa Clara and San Luis counties need it now. We should help our sister counties," Pattee pointed out.

He added that the coastal route would be best for the state as a whole because it would be cheaper, "a half billion dollars cheaper." The water would have to be lifted over the San Luis Mountains but "that's nothing like boosting it over the Tehachapi." Besides, the southern municipalities want it to come coast-wise.

And there's always taxes. "Before there are any increases in taxes there should be a joint committee investigation of the whole tax structure," says Pattee. "It has been done in Minnesota and other states. Our whole state tax structure is antiquated." He has joined in sponsoring such a bill. He is emphatically against deficit financing, he adds.

As soon as he's back in Sacramento he'll resume his weekly letters, which we will print on the Feature Page of the Pine Cone. He wants the people here and all over the county to keep track of what he is doing. "I want to know what they want and what they think."
